Traditional Solemnity Honors Christ the King

note to the day.

Following Mass there was exposition of the Most Blessed Sacrament. Adoration continued during the day closing with the procession and Benediction at three o'clock in the after-

The procession formed in the chapel, led down Alumnae corridor, out the Conservatory doors across the front campus, warm with Autumn sunlight, and back to the chapel. The cross bearer led the procession; the order of those following was the acolytes, the Sisters of Charity of the Blessed Virgin Mary, the freshthe Blessed Virgin Mary, the freshmen, sophomores, juniors, seniors, the choir, and the clergy. The clergy present were Right Rev. Monsignor Robert B. Condon, Ph.D., D.D., La Crosse, Wisconsin, Rev. August R. Thier, D.C.L., vice-president, Columbia college, celebrant, Rev. Nicholas A. Steffin, S.T.B., deacon, Rev. Sylvester D. Luby, M.A., Columbia college, subdeacon, and Rev. Edward A. Fitzgerald, S.T.B., master of ceremonies.

In the procession the seniors and choir wore black caps and gowns and carried torches. The other students wore white dresses and vells. The "Pange Lingua" was sung during the procession ending with the "Tantum Ergo" as the procession reentered the chapel.

For this feast the altar was adorned with yellow and white chrysan-themums and amber lights—signifying the kingship of Christ by the royal colors. Lighted candles were arranged in the shape of a heart with the Blessed Sacrament as its center. The corridors along which the procession passed were decorated with ferns and flowers.

Following benediction was a sermon by Monsignor Condon on the Kingship of Christ. In this he out-lined the testimonials we have of lined the testimonials we have of this kingship from the foretelling of a King to come by the prophets in the Old Testament; through the words of the angel Gabriel in the Annunciation, "Your Son shall be great and of His Kingdom there shall be no end"; to the words of Christ Himself before Pilate, "I am a King." He spoke of how His kingship has been proved by the fact

Members of Senior Class are Guests

The senior class and the Misses Marcella Conlon, Avis Clausen, Virginia Vennema, and Josephine Blanford, members of the faculty were guests at a bridge party Saturday evening, October 18, in the Mount St.

Joseph assembly hall. The Dean of posed of Mme. Augusta Tollefsen, Senloys City Singlests. Clarke College assisted by the junior class was hostess.

The hall was converted into a living room. The soft lights of bridge lamps over the tables arranged in a circular fashion gave the room a homelike atmosphere. Ferns and 1931. roses were used as decorations.

Red and white, the senior class colors, were carried out in the re-freshments which consisted of a two course luncheon.

As a favor each guest received a silver chain and medallion. The tallies bore the Clarke College seal. After the awarding of the prizes to the Misses Dorothy Ritchie, Oelwein, and Lucille Murray, Cedar Rapids, who were the holders of the high scores, the guests enjoyed dancing.

Miss Margaret Mary Henry, Greeley, Ia., president of the junior class acted as general chairman on arrangements.

The Feast of Christ the King was celebrated with ritual observance at Clarke College, Sunday, Obtober 26.

The traditional ceremonies began with Holy Mass offered in the Chapel of the Sacred Heart by Rev. Edward A. Fitzgerald, the college chapward A. Fitzgerald, the college chapillusion subsequent to the war. Ho ward A. Fitzgerald, the college chap-lain, at seven o'clock. The singing was by the college choral; the hymn, "Jesus Christ, King," gave the key-to date the dis-illusion subsequent to the war. He concluded with the prayer that all might be under the standard of Christ the King when time is no

The traditional ceremonies surrounding the annual custom of having the senior class of Clarke College hang the picture of the preceding senior class in alumnae corridor were carried out in Mount St. Jo-seph assembly hall Tuesday evening, October 14, in a dignified and solemn Entering the hall from the rear, the seniors, attired in caps and gowns, marched to the stage to the strains of Gounod's "Marche Ponti-ficale" played by the college band. Miss Margaret Thornton opened the program with an address, "L'Envoi," explaining the significance of the occasion.

The 1930 class roll with honors of graduation was read by Miss Mary Louise Byrnes, Cedar Rapids, president of class of '31. "Memories from Those Who Have Gone Before," poem composed by Miss Ruth Alex-ander, '29, was read by Miss Janet Ludington, Davenport.

A history of the class of 1930 by Miss Frances Hayes, '30, and the pledge of the class of 1930, by Miss Mary Wilkins, '30, was given by Miss Anne Bormann, Cedar Rapids.

The 1930 class poem, composed by Miss Bernice Hurley, '30, was read by Miss Theo Schmid, Davenport.

Each member of the 1931 class read a letter from a graduate of 1930. Following this, a quartet of two vio

Dubuque Archbishop Invested with Pallium

With all the pomp and dignity man occupied the throne to the right of the liturgy of the church, the Most of the altar during the mass. Reverend Francis Joseph Beckman, S. T. D., was invested with the Sacred Pallium by the Most Reverend John T. McNicholas, O. P., S. T. M., Archbishop of Cincinnati in St. Raphael's Cathedral, this morning at 10 o'clock.

Solemn pontifical mass was celebrated by the Right Reverend Patrick McGivern, D. D., bishop of Cheyenne, Wyo., senior suffragan bishop of the archdiocese of Du-

Delegates Report Convention Details

The feature of the initial sodality meeting for this year held Wednesday night, October 8 in Mount St. Joseph assembly hall was the report of the faculty and student delegates to the Students' Spiritual Leatier-ship Convention held in Chicago last June under the auspices of the Sodality of Our Lady.

The two faculty members and the student delegates, the Misses Mary Thomas and Helen Condon, Chicago, outlined for the group the plan of the convention. The narrative given by the delegates of convention happen-ings including Mass in the Holy Name Cathedral with two thousand students attending, of general meetings, of committees, of sight seeing tours enjoyed by the visitors, and the closing banquet made the convention a living reality for Clarke

Miss Thomas reviewed the resolutions made and the problems dis-cussed at the convention; Miss Condon spoke of the sodality pin adopted by the delegates. She presented for inspection a picture of the pin—a golden triangle outlined on which is a crown the points of which are fleur de lis. Through the crown and across the triangle is thrust a sword the handle of which forms a cross. A letter from Rev. Daniel A. Lord.

S.J., chairman of the convention, was read. In this was announced a spe-cial edition of the Queen's Work which would contain details and pictures of the convention. Miss Thomas was appointed chairman of a committee on subscriptions.

The possibility of organizing as departments of the Sodality the various activities that had been carried on separately in former years,—the Christ Child Society, the Eucharistic League, the Mission Guild, and Our Lady's Committee was discussed. The organization of a Catholic Literature club was considered, and a Sodality bulletin board was chosen.

Informal Reception Given At College

The Campus Resident students of Clarke College were hostesses to the faculty, students, friends, and patrons of the college, at an informal reception, Saturday evening, October 11, from 7 to 9 o'clock.

During the evening the guests toured the college and viewed the rooms of the students.

Informal entertainment was afforded in the lounge of Mary Francis Clarke residence hall. Refreshments were served in the parlors of the residence hall by the following members of the sophomore class: Misses Helen Leininger and Mary Braucher, Lincoln, Ill.; and the Misses Mary Lewis, Osceola, Ia.; Marcella Muhl, Vinton, Ia.; Mary Delaney, Beloit, Wis.; Margaret Osten, Chicago; Anne Leary, Waverly, Ia.; Mary Moran, Melrose, Ia.; Mildred Del-aney, Cedar Rapids; Grace Kinnavey, Davenport; Charlotte Torneton, Council Bluffs; and Rita Hurley, Dignitaries from all parts of the United States were present. The cathedral was colorful with the scarlet and deep purple of the vestments of bishops, abbots, and monsignori.

The simplicity of the investiture added to the solemnity of the occa-tion. After Communion the Pallium was placed on the altar. His Grace the Archbishop in full pontifical vestments went to the foot of the altar, and kneeling took the oath of allegiance to the Holy See. There-upon, Archbishop McNicholas placed the Pallium on the shoulders of the new Metropolitan of Dubuque. The newly invested Archbishop then ascended the altar and turning to the people who crowded the church, imparted his solemn blessing, while the metropolitan Cross was held before

Following the investiture the sermon was preached by Archbishop McNicholas. This marked the conclusion of the church services. Afterwards the visiting prelates and clergy assembled at St. Francis Hall, Columbia college, where a banquet was served. It was the wish of the Archbishop that dinner be in-formal. Toasts were given and a number of the prelates gave short talks, congratulating the newly invested Archbishop, and foretelling a glorious future for the archdiocese of Dubuque.

As a liturgical vestment the Pal-As a liturgical vestment the ran-lium is reserved to the Pope and to Archbishops. His Grace the Archbishop has been most bountiful to those under his jurisdiction upon the occasion of his receiving the Sacred Pallium. He has granted both spiritual and tem-poral favors to his "children in Christ." Special indulgences may be gained throughout the octave of St. Raphael, whose feast was celebrated Friday, October 24. An indulgence may be gained also by saying one Hail Mary for the intention of the Archbishop on this, the day of his investiture.

Witches and Goblins Feature of Parties

Witches, goblins, fairles and brownies are figuring in the plans inter-class parties to be held on Wednesday, October 29. The sen-ior-freshman party will be in Mother Mary Francis Clarke residence hall, the junior-sophomore party in the Mount St. Joseph assembly hall.

The senior big slaters are enter-taining their little sisters. The decorations will be in orange and black.

The chairmen of the various com-mittees are Miss Mary Helen Baker, Brookville, Ind.; Miss Lois White, Dubuque; the Misses Mary Woeber and Theo Schmid, Davenport.

The members of the junior class will be hostesses to the sophomores on the same evening in the Mount St. Joseph assembly hall. Owls, bats, fairies and cats will give the desired

Hallowe'en atmosphere for the party. The chairman for the different committees are Miss Maura Mahoney, Kansas City; Miss Alice Stapleton, Muscatine; Miss Frances Leary and Miss Virginia O'Rourke, Du-
